Rabbi Michael Rascoe

Some of you had the privilege to hear Rabbi Jack Shlachter's presentation on the Jews involved in the Manhattan Project at Los Alamos. Following on this theme, J. Robert Oppenheimer named the first atomic blast test "Trinity," inspired by the poems of John Donne. Ernest O.

Lawrence wrote of the first reactions to the test by those present: "The grand, indeed (sic) almost cataclysmic (sic) proportion of the explosion produced a kind of solemnity in everyone's (sic) behavior immediately afterwards. There was restrained applause, but more a hushed murmuring bordering on reverence in manner...." quickly followed by surprise, joy, and relief. Hans Bethe, who had been looking directly at the explosion, was completely blinded for almost half a minute. Norris Bradbury reported that "the atom bomb did not fit into any preconceptions possessed by anybody." The blast wave knocked George Kistiakowsky (who was over five miles away) to the ground. He quickly scrambled to his feet and slapped Oppenheimer on the back, saying, "Oppie, you owe me ten dollars." The physicist Victor Weisskopf reported that "our first feeling was one of elation." Isidor Rabi said, "jubilant." Rabi reported that after the initial euphoria, a chill soon set in on those present. The test director, Kenneth Bainbridge, called the explosion a "foul and awesome display," and remarked to Oppenheimer, "Now we are all sons of bitches."

Expressions of horror and remorse generally came in the later writings of those present. Oppenheimer wrote that the experience called to mind the legend of Prometheus, punished by Zeus for giving humanity fire. He also said that he thought fleetingly of Alfred Nobel's vain hope that dynamite would end wars. Most famously, Oppenheimer later recalled that the explosion had reminded him of a line from the Hindu holy text, the Bhagavad-Gita: "Now I am become Death, the destroyer of worlds." Some, like Lawrence, expressed regret at the loss of life, but felt that the dropping of the bombs saved more lives than would have been lost. The most pessimistic observer admitted, "I thought to myself, 'This is the kind of flash the last man will see the last fraction of a second before the world ends.'"

One interesting reaction was by William L. Laurence, the New York Times science reporter. He said that he thought, "This is the kind of flash when the Lord said, 'Let there be light.'"

I write not to discuss the morality, which would involve much more material, including Hitler's race to the bomb; Heisenberg's role, which has generated much discussion; the complicated role of Japanese society; etc. I note that most moral discussion came later. What's interesting are the different reactions, one of which recalled the Biblical proportions of the event. This is the closest humanity has come to God-like power, and note that it is destructive (though atomic power can have constructive uses). Yet at the same time, if we think about it, the Big Bang was much more massive. Science fiction, some science and midrash to the contrary, we will never know if it was creative or destructive. Yet this kind of atomic power is God-like in a way unmatched so far in human history.

Besides my interest, which Rabbi Jack's talk provoked, and the marking of the anniversary of the dropping of the atomic bombs, is that Rosh Hashanah marks the birthday of the creation of the world. Technically Rosh Hashanah marks the creation of humanity,

Placing Names on the Yizkor List—Yom Kippur

We will memorialize the names of the dear departed during the Yizkor Service, as we have done in the past.

According to tradition, Tzedakah—the giving of charity—is an integral part of the Memorial service. In that spirit, you may have the names of the departed inscribed in a beautiful Yizkor service booklet, including names on the memorial plaques.

To have names memorialized in this booklet, please send a donation of $18 per name. Mail this form, with names printed clearly, along with your check.

Bringing in the High Holiday Season from East to West

The Conservative Movement comes together to learn, sing, and connect as a community. Over 60 rabbis and cantors will present, and a variety of Selihot services will be offered throughout the evening. We will usher in the High Holiday season focusing on:

Teshuva (Repentance: If I Am Not For Myself, Who Is For Me?)

Tefilah (Prayer: And If I Am Only For Myself, What Am I?)

Tzedakah (Righteous Acts: And If Not Now, When?)

Shema Koleinu (Hear our Voice, Accept our Prayer)

This event is sponsored by the Conservative Movement High Holiday Task Force, a partnership between the Cantors Assembly, Jewish Educators Assembly, North American Association of Synagogue Executives, Rabbinical Assembly, and the United Synagogue of Conservative Judaism.

This program is free and open to all. Temple Israel of Riverhead is registered, and individual registration will open September 1. Full schedules and zoom links provided to all who register.

We're glad that our community will be joining this program! We will be getting more information leading up to the program and will share as soon as it is available. Let us know if you need any assistance with the technology. In the meantime, feel free to explore the website: cjsejihot.org

Fall Clothing Drive

Dear Temple Israel of Riverhead Community and Friends,

These have certainly been tough times. We are lucky to have each other and our faith. The small yet mighty Youth Group members are thinking of others. As mentioned in the poem below, we are collecting new socks and undergarments to be donated to Maureen's Haven. I can do the shopping if you prefer to make a monetary donation (I drive now!). You can speak with Jaime for more information.

I am hoping to blow the Shofar this year, whether live in person or virtual, to thank you for your help.

Josh Kaplan

Hi. Hello. My name is Josh
I've taken on a project- oh my gosh
I help others, yes I do
Kinda hoping you will help too

Just so you know, you don't have to be a maven
We are working with Maureen's Haven

Their goal is collecting underwear and socks
You making a donation really rocks
For this drive we must be bold
And provide essentials to young and old

Some of your neighbors are truly in need
And this is a chance to help with a good deed

If you could donate undies or socks
Take them to the synagogue and place in the box

For those of you who don't have a stash
Not to worry, Maureen's Haven also accepts cash

with the creation of the world being five days earlier, as humanity was created on day six. Indeed, there is a debate in the Talmud as to whether creation of the world occurred in Tishri (Rosh Hashanah), or in Nisan, (the month in which Pesaḥ, Passover, the redemption from Egypt), occurs. Of course, tradition decided that it occurred in Tishri and now it is commemorated by Rosh Hashanah.

Every day, we see an event of similar proportion and perspective. The sun rises, and we, even in the midst of electric lights, will acknowledge it in one way or another, whether religiously with prayer, or grudgingly with work, or these days perhaps depressively, with thoughts of pandemic in mind. How we choose to see the new day in the new light is up to us as individuals, and also as a society. Rosh Hashanah suggests that we see it with hope. In the light of Rosh Hashanah, we can see the new day as an act of mercy, love, understanding, and truth, to borrow imagery from many midrashim. The new light can illumine the world with faith and confidence. It can be seen through the lens of moral deeds. We can also see it as a foreshadowing of the messiah (for all of these images, see Bereshit Rabbah Ch. 1-2). Through the lenses of Rosh Hashanah and the daily prayer book, we can see the renewal of the world and the hope inherent in the daily renewal of creation in a world full of light, and still see a world full of promise, faith, and confidence, in a covenant with God.

L'shanah tovah tikkatevu v'tehatemu. May you be inscribed in the book of life for a happy and healthy year. Michael

Philanthropy • Public Service • Volunteering

We know what it takes to make a strong Jewish community.

Doing our job well is just the beginning.

We believe to be a good funeral director, you should serve the community in times of growth and happiness as well as times of grief. It's not surprising we've served the Jewish community for over 100 years. How we've served is the surprising part. David Rubin and his entire staff work tirelessly in serving the Jewish community, but then, that's part of our philosophy and tradition. We believe to be a good funeral director, you should serve and give back to the community.
